ABOUT WOLFS GALLERY

Originally opened by Michael Wolf in 1979, WOLFS grew into an internationally-respected auction house, and became a favorite stop for buyers from all over the world. WOLFS has since turned into a large and diverse art gallery covering the main gallery floor, three galleries on the lower level, an upstairs mezzanine, and many works on loan or rotating through storage. While the gallery is comprised mainly of fine art, a number of decorative art pieces remain, including antique and modern future.

Because WOLFS was originally an auction house for many years, they are comfortable with a wide range of periods and styles ranging from the 16th through the 21st century. Inventory includes a wide selection of Cleveland School Art and unique fine and decorative arts from the serious to the unusual.

Throughout the year, WOLFS focuses on various artists or specific collections with routinely scheduled openings and events. The gallery building, which was originally an early 20th century powerhouse for streetcars, is on occasion a venue for lectures, exhibitions, musical performances, and private parties, which we present for educational purposes and to promote art and culture in Cleveland.

WOLFS represents the estates of numerous artists and selectively represents a few contemporary artists. Among the estates represented are Carl Gaertner, Paul Travis, and Clarence Carter.

Also on view at WOLFS are many European and American paintings ranging from the 18th Century to Contemporary.

WOLFS is located on Larchmere Blvd. in Cleveland's antique district. For more information, please visit WolfsGallery.com
